

Filed an insurance claim for it (yesterday).

Didn't expect a 50 something to be texting while she waited for a light. Susan was driving and unharmed. Car just needs ~$1,000 of bumper R&R and paint. Painted stripes are expensive. Lady's insurance (AAA) still deciding who's at fault, but they did not see the video until an hour ago and their insured sure as hell had no idea what happened unless she did it on purpose. Pretty obvious she didn't know she hit anything until the impact "woke her up". Can't even claim no brake lights since both were stopped for a prolonged time before she started up and drove into our still stationary car.
